

Dr. Dechen Doma Sherpa

Dr. Dechen Doma Sherpa is an Assistant Professor in the Department of English at St. Xavier's College Raghampur Campus, with one year of dedicated service. She holds a Ph.D. in Narratology from H.N.B.G University, Uttarakhand, awarded in 2019, showcasing her commitment to the field of literature. Dr. Sherpa's research interests are rooted in the exploration of women's narratives and folk literature.

Her recent publication, "The Women's Rites of Passage: Retracing the Alta Impressions in Chitra Banerjee Divakaruni's Oleander Girl," in Contemporary Discourse, demonstrates her scholarly prowess. Additionally, her work, "Voices from the Ruins: A Study of Chitra Banerjee Divakaruni's One Amazing Thing," published in Gnosis, reflects her dedication to advancing the understanding of literary works.

As an Assistant Professor, Dr. Sherpa is actively shaping the minds of future communicators and fostering a deep appreciation for English literature among her students. Her commitment to academic excellence and her passion for literature make her a valuable asset to the academic community.